

Pseudo Code

A landing page with the app h1 "Go Explore"

H2 "Where in the world should you go next?"

Button with "lets fly" that will navigate the user to first question

- Listen to the button click event to scroll to the form section

Array of destinations with each destination as an object

Each object will have property: values,

User will select a radio button option per a question.

- Listen for radio button click event
- Check user input values from radio button options

Filter down destination objects based on user input value

Button - next question

Event listener - button click scroll page to next question

Continue filtering down destination objects based on user input values per question

Display final destination on the result page

stretch:

Button - next question

Else if next question - scroll down to next question